NEW PALÆOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY, London.

A meeting will be held on Thursday, Feb. 8th. at 4.30 p.m. in the Director's Office, British Museum, to consider the disposal of the funds and stock of the Society. The following proposals will be made:

1. That the greater part of the balance in hand (amounting to about £320) be given to the fund for the purchase of the Codex Sinaiticus.

2. That the stock of the Society, with a small sum for working expenses, be handed over to the Friends of the National Libraries, on the understanding that the proceeds of future sales will be devoted to the purchase of manuscripts.

PALÆOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY, London.

THIS Society has been formed for the purpose of collecting materials for the study of a branch of antiquarian science not yet established on a satisfactory basis, though one in which it is possible to attain to a very great exactness.

That Palæography has hitherto been treated with imperfect success is owing to the incompleteness, both in quantity and quality, of facsimile specimens of ancient writing and ornamentation of manuscripts, on the evidence of which it has been attempted to establish definite conclusions. And this deficiency is most apparent for the more remote times, the extant manuscripts of which are few in number and usually undated. As they are also widely dispersed, the means of study of forms of characters and other peculiarities by comparison of the original writings have been proportionately limited.

How much the importance of Palæography has been recognised is shown in the costly publications which have been devoted to it; such as the sumptuous work of Silvestre; that of Count Bastard, selling at more than £100; and more recently, the splendidly illustrated volume of Professor Westwood on Irish and Anglo-Saxon MSS.

The most comprehensive endeavour to systematise the science was made by the Benedictines of St. Maur in their "Nouveau Traité de Diplomatique," published in the years 1750-1762. The plates, however, of this work, though numerous, are insufficient for their purpose, for the specimens rarely extend beyond a few lines. Moreover, the subject of ornamentation and illustration is scarcely noticed.
